

More News Anent "The Cleanliness Crank"

The recent ten-day contest headed "The Cleanliness Crank," brought forth results in the shape of over 500 replies.

Out of this large number there were only four who failed to reveal the identity of "the crank," which proves conclusively that the people had their minds strictly on The Grocery So Different.

We wish to thank each and every one of the contestants for the interest they took in the contest.

We publish herewith prize article No. 7:

"One man in Waco holds undisputed 'sway' to the title of 'crank' on cleanliness. He has established and managed successfully a business that has been built on the one principle that everything that goes into the human stomach should be clean as well as pure. George G. Stubblefield is the man and his 'Grocery So Different' is a living realization of the fact that a grocery store can be made as inviting as a parlor.

"MRS. LULU T. WILSON.

"No. 3000 Homan St., R. F. D. No. 1."

"The above is submitted in the competition for your crank contest."

Miss Esther Woodward, who spent two weeks with Miss Alice Brazelton, Austin avenue, is again at home in Marlin.

Miss Mabel Bunch came up from Marlin on Friday. She is guest of Miss Alice Brazelton, Austin avenue. Mrs. William Morrow of West Columbus is due from Childress with Monday.

After a few days with her mother, Mrs. J. S. McLendon, on Austin avenue, Mrs. Horatio Adams is returning home to Dallas today. Mrs. Edward Helen of Sherman is guest of Mrs. Hugh McLendon, Columbus street. She will return home with Sunday.

Out at Highland Mrs. J. W. Murphy is entertaining Mrs. W. H. Wheeler, Jr., from Flatonia. On Thursday Mrs. R. L. Brazelton and Miss Edna Little, from Rosebud, were guests of Mrs. J. W. Murphy at Highland.

The Mesdames J. M. Hale and Fred Robinson are at home from attending the club women's board meeting in Fort Worth.

Mrs. W. E. Spell of West Austin who has been in Fort Worth for a few days, is due at home today.

Miss Ben Evelyn McKie of Sanger avenue has returned from a visit in Austin.

Rose McGhee of Sanger avenue has returned from a visit in Austin. On Friday Miss Clara Archibald of North Sixteenth street left for a visit in Hillboro, is at home.

Miss Ruth Blair of North Fifteenth street who was a Wednesday visitor to Hillboro, is at home.

HAD AWFUL WEAK SPELLS

Suffered So Much Felt She
Had to Have Relief. Says
Cardui Made Her
Well.

Elba, Ala.—Mrs. M. T. May, of this place, writes: "I was not especially strong when I married, but after my marriage, I seemed to get very much worse. About two months after I was married, I began to have awful weak spells. Would have had spells of headache, simply felt bad all the time, could hardly do a thing. I suffered so much pain in my left side and had the swelling of the head and congestion and heartburn very bad. In fact I suffered so much I thought I would die. I kept getting worse and felt I must have some relief. I had some pain and difficulty in walking.

"Mr. —, who ran a store in —, recommended that I take 'Cardui,' and my husband bought me a bottle, which did me so much good that he bought me another, and after the use of three or four bottles I was well; was up doing my work after the use of the first bottle. It's the finest tonic I know of. I got into better health than I had been since my marriage. I advise all women—who have weak spells—to take it."

The thousands of letters, which come to us every year, like the above, certainly are proof of the merits of Cardui, the woman's tonic.

MISS EDWINA STURGIS IS LUNCHEON HONOREE

Mrs. James Sturgis is giving invitation for a girls' luncheon on Tuesday. This welcomes the homecoming from school of Miss Edwina Sturgis.

DATE IS NOW KNOWN FOR MARCH WEDDING

Although cards have not yet arrived, it is an open secret that the marriage of Gardner Gillespie of this city to Miss Esther Cornwell of New Jersey takes place on March the Fifteenth. Mr. Gillespie will be accompanied from here by his best man.

MRS. WILLIS BROWN HONORED BY MRS. T. E. JARMAN

Mrs. T. E. Jarman has extended invitations for bridge on Wednesday afternoon in compliment to her guest, Mrs. Willis Brown from LaGrange. This is the first week of Mrs. Brown since, as Miss Nannette McClintock, she became a bride in a new home. Thus, Mrs. Jarman's invitations are given first to the closer friends of her guest.

BACHELOR MAIDS PLAY WITH MISS ELLEN HARDIN

Six were invited by Miss Ellen Hardin as Thursday housewife to join the game of the Bachelor Maids, these being Mrs. Lucile Stratton Kirksey and Mrs. Irving Swann with the Mesdames Mildred Smith, Ruby McClain, Dixon Holloway and Ruth Blair. In closing the last round it was found that Miss Mary Carter captured the prize. Miss Frances Luedde will entertain the club on next Friday instead of the accustomed Thursday.

MERRY MATRONS MEET WITH MRS. F. L. CHRISTMAN

Playing their jolly progressive game, the Merry Matrons spent Thursday afternoon with Mrs. F. L. Christman. Special guests within the game were the Mesdames Norman Church, Charles Eichelberger, J. M. Penland and J. W. Taylor. After the round, prizes were awarded the Mesdames E. L. Farley and Krier. The only business transacted was the selection of Mrs. William Appell, a new member. The luncheon plate was last offering from hostess.

MRS. SAM HANNA HOSTESS WITHIN THIS WEEK

In small parties and in varying ways, Mrs. Sam Hanna has devoted the three last days in entertaining her friends. In the first, fourteen from those who enjoy bridge were guests of Mrs. Hanna for luncheon and later formed an afternoon game. On Friday afternoon, Mrs. Hanna had received boxes of the Hippodrome with tea in her home at 5 o'clock. This afternoon the neighbors who meet in an altogether informal way for forty-two are having their game with Mrs. Hanna.

LITERARY CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. R. B. SPENCER

In the bi-weekly session of the Literary club where Mrs. R. B. Spencer was hostess, there was discussion upon the problem drama, how this originated, what it purports, and which dramas all proved quite interesting and there was quite a full attendance of members. Mrs. Thomas Caulfield as president has already announced her committees, for nomination, course of study, and general preparation in advance of adjournment and readiness for a new year. Mrs. Forest Goodman kept the minutes, Mrs. William Early having resigned, but having prepared her paper, sent a review of the problem drama. This was followed by application of ideas and form with Mrs. "Doll House," given by Mrs. J. W. Downs. Miss Olive Halbert was leader for the round table to bring out the several dramas with proper analysis. Mrs. Spencer invited the club

DUAL HOSTESS AT BRIDGE ON THE SOUTH SIDE

For one of the pleasures, among the several on Thursday afternoon, the Mesdames H. A. Orr and Paul Leeper, entertained at bridge, and welcomed several for the call as the game dissolved. This game, however, did not disband until pleasing prizes had been presented the Mesdames J. J. Behrens and F. J. Lennox. Fresh flowers, garden jonquils in profusion in vase, and others in fancy pot, were admired. Those who enjoyed the game and the call were the Mesdames Walter Miller, F. J. Lennox, Edwin Drake, B. B. Wilson, J. D. Willis, McCook, P. A. Weathered, J. J. Behrens, Moore Hays, Charles Link, L. J. Mayfield, Arthur Jackson Hall, A. P. Hickson, C. McElhannon and Miss Ruby Garland.

DR. S. P. BROOKS HAS AU REVOIR DINNER

Since the good husband is to be away from home upon his senatorial campaign for the coming month, Mrs. S. P. Brooks planned an au revoir dinner for Thursday evening. For this a dozen enjoyed the pleasure both of the Baylor university cafeteria and the Brooks home. The dinner tables reserved for the party gave patronage to the Washington season, a log for center with hatched hedge; also, plate favors in the bit of cherry tree trunk, with hatched ready for the immortal stroke. The cherries had been plucked for the recourse. Guests served cafeteria style, enjoyed the novel dinner. Later joined by Dean and Mrs. Kesler, there was all manner of good time with Dr. and Mrs. Brooks within their own home. The last word was god speed towards success in wearing the senatorial toga from the guests, these being the Mesdames and Mesdames Pat Neff, W. W. Woodson, E. F. Drake, A. J. Armstrong, E. G. Guitard and Frank Allen.

MRS. J. N. M'FARLAND FOR MISS LUCILE LEWIS

In preparing her company rooms for the coming of more than a half a dozen guests, Mrs. J. N. M'Farland gave the first intimation of patronage to the incoming spring. Entering guests caught first glimpse of a basket hanging as center to overflowing blossom, while the lattice leading into the sun parlor fairly revealed in climbing asparagus plumosa. The tables, four-

Society Notes

Following the luncheon in her honor with Tuesday, Miss Edwina Sturgis is mentioned as dinner honoree within the next few days.

Really we are beginning the very best behavior around the bridge table. Courtesy, unselfishness and other social graces are now with the Waco women.

It is next in order to tell who is going to Houston and Dallas for grand opera. The Mesdames Clinton Padgett and George Rotan have already left for Houston. Miss Mary De Bow of West avenue goes over to Dallas to be the guest of Mrs. John Hanna on Wednesday.

Sometime we are to have a society sermon preached from the text of provincialism over-taking exceptions at not being invited to a friend's function. Surely we are broad enough to admit that congeniality is the watchword of every social affair, and that a hostess in Waco today can not include her entire list when she gives a small party for a certain purpose. But more of this anon; prepare for it. Waco society needs the reminder and it is coming.

About these weddings, they are coming several of them, and the brides are not waiting for the June roses to bloom, either.

We must all bear in mind that etiquette in a club is just as much the mark of refined ladyhood as it is in the ball room or at the bridge table. Even more, this is evidence of being to the manner born. Naturally, the dance and the bridge attracts those of similar pursuit, but with the literary club, there are all sorts and conditions of women, young and old, rich and poor, rural and city. Club ethics is something well worth the heeding.

When the blue moment comes and things go all awry in the home, take to the woods. The sunshine and the fresh air will be your best tonic.

Mrs. Hugh McLendon of the Hotel Raleigh is with Mrs. James H. Baker on Columbus street until more permanent plans are made.

Miss Jimmie Horne of the South Side continues with her sister, Mrs. J. M. McCelvey in Temple. No date for her homecoming is named.

In their return from attending the executive board meeting for the State Federation of Women's Clubs, the Mesdames J. M. Hale and Fred Robinson report a beautiful surprise luncheon with the Fort Worth women hostesses to eighty of the bright women of Texas who compose the incoming board, with Mrs. Fred Fleming president.

Plans are furthering a Tacky Party out at the Canyon Club. Society will be thus arrayed and abandoned to a jolly good time.

The unexpected has happened with Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Jernigan. They are now upon the eve of returning to reside in Dallas, when they had expected to remain permanent with Mrs. Sam Evans on the South Side.

Miss Lillian Westbrook has deferred her homecoming from San Angelo until early March days, perhaps will later.

Many friends here note with sympathy the bereavement to Mrs. Arch Grinnan in the passing away of Mr. Grinnan on Thursday. The mother, Mrs. R. B. Dupree, was on a visit to Mrs. Grinnan, while the brother, Robert Dupree, left at once for Brownwood.

Do not forget to impress upon the little folks, that the parks are for their pleasure, to play just as much as they please. But they must restrain from pulling so much as a leaf.

Mrs. Lewis Early will be hostess for the Young Married Ladies' Bridge club on next Tuesday. This was not announced at the last game with Mrs. Randolph Wilson.

On Friday, the Mesdames M. A. Trice and Beulah Trice Brown moved out to one of the Herring avenue cottages, where they are permanently domiciled.

It was quite the pleasing little visit with friends of her girlhood which Mrs. Florence Gerald Clark enjoyed during the engagement of Everywoman.

Wonder how many women have kept up with details in the war news? Perceptive few, we wager. Things have become too tedious. Wonder how many Waco women have kept up with details developing for the Style Show? Thousands, we wager, for nothing is tedious with this exciting event. By the way, are those guests invited for Style Show days?

The Mesdames Lucetta Crawford of Chicago, Frances Hays and Anna Fry Jones with Bruce Duncan, C. B. McCollum, and Lin Grand, were guests of William Abeel for the first performance of Everywoman.

WHAT IS FARM MANAGEMENT?

Farm management as a branch of agricultural science is defined as follows in an address recently delivered in New England by one of the specialists of the United States department of agriculture:
"The farm management investigator gets his information direct from the farmer. The solution of many of the practical problems of agriculture are found to have already been solved generations ago by large groups of farmers; particularly is it true of farm management and organization. Every farmer is of necessity more or less of an experimenter. The results of thousands of such experimenters gathered by the farm management investigator, classified and interpreted in their bearing on the community's problems and on the individual farm's problems, yield not only many fundamental broadly applicable principles of good farm organization, but also show in more or less detail in just what respect a successfully operated farm differs from one which is a failure or only moderately successful."

In previous decades the agricultural investigator largely concerned himself with the study of how to accomplish certain ends. How best to feed a pig or cow; how best to raise potatoes or fruit. The farm management investigator is concerned with determining whether to keep cows or pigs; whether to raise fruit or potatoes; and, if an industry be found to be desirable, to what extent it should enter into the farm organization, and with what intensity it should be pursued. All of these problems have in the aggregate been solved by the farmers. Farm management is merely a science for classifying and interpreting the collective experience of the farming people as to what constitutes business efficiency in farming.

"Farm management" considers farming as a business. It attempts to analyze the various factors having to do with the success or failure of that business as it is found conducted on the individual farm, and in so far as possible to determine the broad outstanding factors for efficiency which admit of general application for a region.
And in the dissemination of the information which the farm investigator has gathered the department of agriculture is rendering a very useful service. Farmers can greatly promote their own success by studying how their fellow farmers have solved problems and obtained certain ends.

EMBARRASSING THE PRESIDENT.

We would not charge the democratic members of congress who are insisting on taking a hand in the negotiations with Germany over the submarine controversy with playing politics with so delicate a matter, though we grant the truth of President Wilson's recent declaration that it is very unfortunate that such weighty problems as this and many others of an international character have to be wrought out in a political year. But we think the members of congress are making a mistake in taking a hand in the controversy at this stage when by doing so they may interrupt the diplomatic exchanges that promise to effect an amicable adjustment of the matter. Advances from Washington are to the effect that Germany will postpone the date of her proposed warfare upon armed merchantmen, pending a fuller understanding with this country as to what constitutes an armed merchantman, and there is no occasion for the great alarm which is being felt by some of the democrats in both houses.

Truly, the United States does not want war with Germany, a friendly nation. Neither does Germany want war with us, and the fact that the president and his advisers have handled even more critical situations than that confronting the country at the present time in a manner that has maintained our national honor and the rights of neutrals and preserved peace at the same time is all the more reason why he should be given a free hand until such time as it becomes evident that he is unable to cope with the situation through diplomatic agencies. That would be soon enough for congress to take the matter out of his hands and assume the responsibility to the country for the guidance of our international affairs.

There is none of us but who would like to see all American citizens refrain from travel on merchantmen belonging to any of the nations engaged in the big war. Patriotic Americans will refuse to run the risk of bringing trouble upon their country by disregarding the dictates of prudence in this connection. But for the government, officially, to back down from all its contentions not alone for the rights of its own citizens but for the rights of all neutrals and the principles of international law at this late stage of the war, after we have contended so strongly for these things heretofore, would be a humiliation to which the loyal sons of America do not want to submit. The president, who is infinitely better informed as to the negotiations with Germany than the members of congress are, feels confident of bringing about an amicable adjustment of the situation and we are persuaded the democrats of both houses should be as loyal to the nation's head as are the republicans, who are supporting him almost to a man.

In his letter to Senator Stone, President Wilson says, in part:
"But in any event our duty is clear. No nation or group of nations has the right while the war is in progress to alter or disregard the principles which all nations have agreed upon in mitigation of the horrors and sufferings of war; and if the clear rights of American citizens should ever unhappily be abridged or denied by any such action, we should, it seems to me, have in honor no choice as to what our own course should be."

"For my part I cannot consent to any abridgment of the rights of American citizens in any respect. The honor and self-respect of the nation is involved. We covet peace and shall preserve it at any cost but the loss of honor. To forbid our people to exercise their rights for fear we might be called upon to vindicate them would be a deep humiliation indeed. It would be an implicit, all but an explicit, acquiescence in the violation of the rights of mankind everywhere and of whatever nation or allegiance. It would be a deliberate abdication of our hitherto proud position as spokesmen even amidst the turmoil of war for the law and the right. It would make everything this government has attempted and everything that it has achieved during this terrible struggle of nations meaningless and futile."

"It is important to reflect that if in this instance we allowed expediency to take the place of principle, the door would inevitably be opened to still further concessions. Once accept a single abatement of right and many other humiliations would certainly follow and the whole fine fabric of international law might crumble under our hands, piece by piece. What we are contending for in this matter is of the very essence of the things that have made America a sovereign nation. She cannot yield them without conceding her own impotency as a nation and making virtual surrender of her independent position among the nations of the world."

No one believes the president is for war with Germany or anybody else. And no one thinks that he would involve this country in a conflict except that war was the only means of maintaining the nation's honor. To appear too anxious in the matter at the present time is to discredit the good faith of Germany, and while that nation is fighting for its very existence it has shown a very large consideration for the wishes of this country and the contentions of this government in behalf of the observance of international law. Congressional activity at this time will serve only to make the president's negotiations with the Teutonic powers all the more difficult, for it will serve to make uncertain what the attitude of the government really is.

There will be plenty of time for congress to act after our diplomatic resources have been exhausted.

MINORITY LEADER MANN.

One of the most interesting things about the decision of the republican leader of the house of representatives in Washington, recently, to support the preparedness campaign of the democratic president, was the characteristic light in which that decision exhibited Representative James Robert, or "Jim" Mann, of Illinois, and, more particularly, of Chicago, says the Christian Science Monitor. There is not in the entire United States, perhaps, a more uncompromising republican partisan than the chosen leader of the house minority, and, by the same token, there is not in the entire United States, perhaps, a republican partisan farther above and farther removed from the pettiness of partisanship. Republicans, in and out of the popular branch of the United States congress, who look to "Jim" Mann for guidance in partisan regularity, look in vain to him for encouragement in partisan narrowness or bigotry.

He is not large in stature, nor imposing in voice, but in outlook and viewpoint and general comprehension of public affairs, public questions and public men, he has been regarded, by those in closest contact with him since his first appearance in congress going on twenty years ago, as a master craftsman in legislative detail. It has been said of him that he combines some of the best qualities that have been manifested by a half dozen or so of the ablest leaders of the house during the last fifty years, but that he has escaped being a composite character. This is true. He is individualistic and he is broad. The narrow and the bigoted politician is constantly on the lookout for slips in the opposite sense, and is always ready to take advantage of them. He is found antagonizing everything attempted by the other side, simply because it is the other side.

Not so with "Jim" Mann. He does not carry on his campaigns, or win his contests by pursuing or practicing methods from which most men shrink in business and social life. He is just as prompt to help a party foe as he is to help a party friend out of an embarrassing situation. He has been an invaluable adviser of many young members, regardless of their party affiliations. When he stood up in the house, the other day, and demanded that his party associates give their support and their votes to the president's defense program, on the ground that patriotism is not, and should never be, partisan, those who agreed with him on the main proposition, as well as those who did not, were willing to concede, at least, that the act was characteristically generous.

Minority Leader Mann is an alert observer of legislation, and is quick to discern a flaw in procedure or in ruling. He is, perhaps, oftener on his feet than any other member in opposition to the party to which the speaker of the house belongs. He is bitter in invective when attacking the democratic party and its policies; he is unsparing of democratic sentiment or doctrine or prejudice when the issue is political. At the point of sine die adjournment of the last congress, nevertheless, no member of the house paid a more eloquent or a more manifestly sincere tribute to the democratic speaker, Champ Clark.

The strength of James R. Mann, as a party leader, lies in the fact that he is always sure of his ground. A few days ago, in a debate, he called the attention of a member to what he pronounced an error of statement regarding a question under discussion. The person addressed, in defense, said: "I think I am right in my assertion," and so on. "I know," replied Mr. Mann, "that you are wrong." When he goes so far he is seldom disputed. It is generally admitted that, when he is positive about anything, he knows that he is right. Moreover, he is content where he is. He does not wish to be a speaker. He does not wish his state to make him a senator. He scoffs at the idea of his becoming an aspirant for the presidency. No bees buzz in his bonnet. It is recognized, on all sides, that he has all he wants in the way of political preferment. He can, therefore, talk disinterestedly, and, as a disinterested person, his advice is sought and his judgment is valued by persons who are sincerely desirous of learning the facts about their qualifications and prospects in politics. They do not all go away pleased, but most of them go away convinced that they have heard what is true.

If the style show committee has not done so already, we would suggest that they wait on Dr. Block and have him order a continuation of this beautiful spring weather for the style show attractions next week.

The Senatorial Race

No Blunders to Cover Up.

(Cleveland, Feb. 25.)—The Bryan Daily Eagle says one thing in favor of Dr. S. P. Brooks in the senatorial race is that he has no political record to defend.

Best Fun Is Yet to Come.

(Cleveland, Feb. 25.)—The senatorial campaign in Texas continues to wax warmer as the days go by. New alignments are being made every day, and the fun is sure to come.

Enthusiasm for Culberson Lacking.

Senator Culberson's announcement has not created the enthusiasm his friends thought it would, and, in fact, no reason why it should. He should retire until he gets well and able to attend to the business of the senate. Brooks will fill the place admirably, and we believe he will be our next senator from Texas.

Crutch as a Campaign Aid.

Senator Culberson was able to occupy his seat in the senate last Tuesday for the first time this season. Sometimes a crutch is a great campaign aid when it can be used where the voters see it, but an empty chair at Washington isn't worth much in a campaign in Texas.

Rallying to the Standard.

His friends over the state are rallying to Senator Culberson's standard in a manner that pretty accurately forecasts his re-election to the United States senate. The news has come from Washington that the senator is in better health than for several years and that he has lost none of his old-time vigor. Texas needs men in the senate who have brains and who are against any further encroachments of the federal power over the states. Culberson fills the bill and the democracy of Texas will certainly honor him with another term.

May the Best Man Win.

Dallas seems determined on furnishing "Charley" Culberson's successor, being the candidates in the race. It is Heller is the last man to announce from the city, the list now being composed of Senator Culberson, ex-Governor Colquitt, John Davis, George W. Riddle and R. E. Heller.—Kosce Cyclopedia.
More entries means more losers, as only one man can win—and may be the best one.—Mart Herald.

As to Our Neighbor's Support.

The Waco papers have about lined up in their choice of candidates for United States senator to fill the next vacant term. The Waco Morning News is for Samuel P. Brooks as the "logical candidate." The Waco Semi-Weekly Tribune, Senator McCollum's popular paper, is for Robert L. Henry. It would take an angel from heaven with a search warrant from the highest authority there—probably Thomas Jefferson in the editor's estimate—to get an expression from the Times-Herald as to its choice.

Georgetown's Brooks Club.

A Brooks club was organized here last Saturday night with the following members: Dr. J. H. Allen, Rev. David P. Hill, Dr. C. M. Bishop, Prof. W. P. Davidson, Jack Adams, Dr. B. Newlin, John C. Granbery, Prof. V. C. Vaden, T. C. Gahan, Prof. R. J. Eddy, R. T. Cooper, W. H. Hagan, D. J. G. Logan, Ray Purl, W. H. Thompson, W. P. Sauer, John W. Shaw, Roy Richardson, Dr. C. N. Winder, Prof. Thomas E. Lee and C. S. Griffith.
The temporary organization, with Dr. John C. Granbery as chairman and Jack Adams as secretary, was gone into. The club heard of a number in Taylor anxious for such a move. Dr. Brooks was requested to speak in Georgetown at an early date.

Joe Bailey, First and Last.

(Marlin Review.)
Should Joe Bailey enter the race for the United States senate we would be willing to bet our last chip on his election. No Campbell, no Brooks, no Riddle, no demagogue in our. In fact, no nationwide nor woman suffragist need apply at this office for favors, but Henry is for woman suffrage. We will never vote for a suffragist for the senate, for congress or for the legislature.

Picks Winners Who Never Win.

(Hillsboro Mirror.)
The esteemed Houston Chronicle says that the race for senator will be between Campbell and Colquitt. So that settles it. Not much consolation, however, for the supporters of either man, for the Chronicle has established a record for "picking" the winner, who never wins.

Culberson Good Mixer.

(Matagorda County Tribune.)
Mr. Culberson has always been regarded as a strong man. He has never mixed or interfered with any of the state's local or factional fights and, politically, he has never been explained to do or any charges to face. He has never really acted as umpire or referee for any branch or branches of the politics of the state, hence his slate is clean. He has never been disturbed much by his entry into the race. It was expected and his old following, if kept intact, will make his candidacy a difficult problem for the other aspirants to solve.

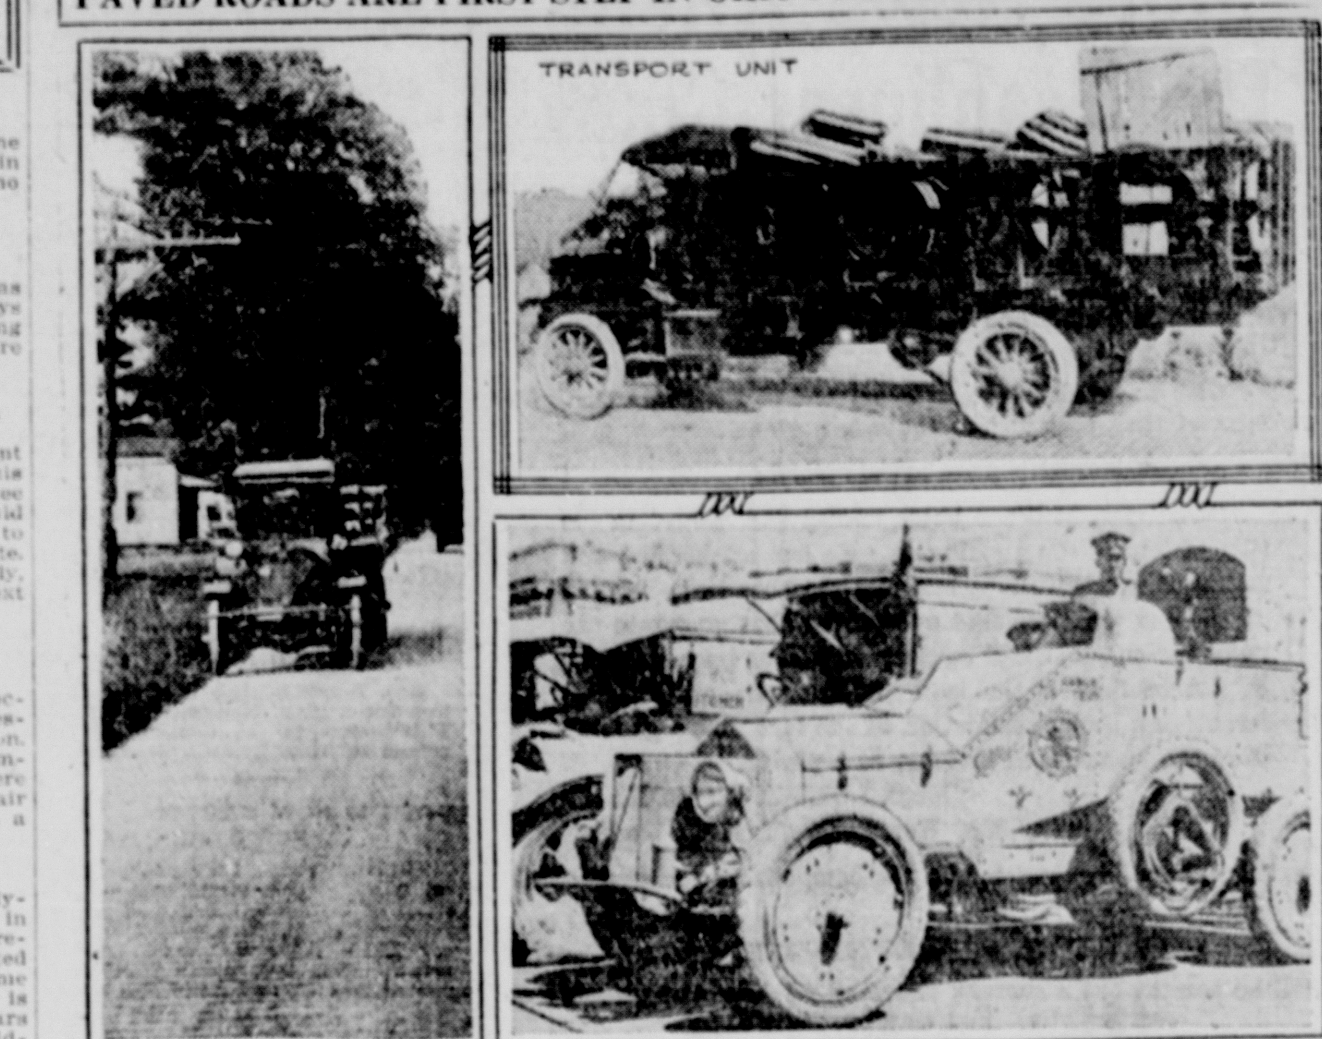

Man of Breadth and Vision.

(Garland News.)
S. P. Brooks of Baylor University is a man who has proven the breadth of his mind. He thinks world thoughts, his vision is clear and his mind unfogged. He is anything but a demagogue trying to play on the passions and prejudices of the people. He is a plain, honest, hard working man who has risen from a day laborer to a position of influence that is more than state-wide. He faces the big questions straight from the shoulder, and though he has labored with Andrew Carnegie and the other peace advocates for many years he stands with Wilson's hand for preparedness. He has the intellect for the job, the health back of the intellect and the courage of his convictions.

No Liquor Advertising.

In many of the prohibition states news-dealers cannot sell a paper or magazine containing liquor advertisements. They are compelled either to cut out the advertisement or cover it with lamplblack—all of which helps to agitate and to educate.

PAVED ROADS ARE FIRST STEP IN OHIO'S MILITARY PREPAREDNESS

PAVED TRUCK ROUTE U.S. ARMORED CAR

Cleveland, which has established the first permanent military school for training citizens, also leads in preparedness for proper military transport. The immense importance of motor vans, armored cars, motor artillery and motor ambulances in the present European war has caused it to be described as a "gasoline war." Cleveland is the center of a 400 mile system of brick highways and inter-city trucking operations over these roads have assumed great importance. Military men say that these roads and trucks could be changed from a peace to a war footing with a minimum of effort. Their adaptability to this use will be tested by military maneuvers in the early spring.

Special to the Morning News.
Cleveland, Feb. 25.—This is a gasoline war, according to the witness at the front, hence Uncle Sam's program of preparedness is a matter, to a certain extent, of trucks, of armored cars, of motor artillery and of roads on which to operate them.Cleveland, which has given America its first permanent citizens' military training school, is also the center of the locally most admirably adapted for motor strategy.
Over 400 miles of rural brick roads radiate in all directions from Cleveland to the various smaller centers of Northeastern Ohio. Interurban trucking over these roads has reached a status which would make possible the mobilization of war supplies with a minimum of effort.Rely on Drafted Vehicles.
The importance of this lies in the fact that no European government has found it practicable to own all of the trucks in time of peace that are needed in war. They rely upon privately owned machines, going so far as to subsidize manufacturers and owners with the understanding that cars shall be made of a type easily adapted to war purposes.

Napoleon said that an army traveled only as fast as its supply trains. In the present war, however, the supply trains have had to wait for the soldiers more often than otherwise. The rapid advance of General von Kluck toward Paris and the equally facile retreat of the English, who avoided trap after trap, was due to the motor truck and to the improved roads of Northeastern France.

Raiders Use Armed Car.
During the present war, also, the armored automobile has become a practical means of offense for the first time. For raiding, observation or the temporary obstruction of a bridge or pass, the quick moving auto, with its steel protection, its machine gun turret and its device for shearing through wire entanglements is rapidly taking the place of cavalry.

The old-fashioned gun carriage, for field pieces, has been largely replaced by an auto truck mounting, which makes artillery immensely more mobile than ever before.

Thousands of lives have been saved, also, by the rapid removal of wounded men to hospitals many miles from the front, when, but for the motor vehicle, they would have languished for days upon the ground or would have received hasty attention in crude field hospitals.

Severe Test on Highways.
War traffic has been highly destructive of Europe's roads, many of which have been rebuilt time after time since the war started. The French highway officials for several years have realized that the typical French road was not ideal for heavy motor traffic and immediately preceding the war were investigating the brick highway system of Ohio, but were unable to put their conclusions into effect as a war preparation.

Actual maneuvers, planned for early spring, will further test the adaptability of this road system for war needs.

Bill Farnum Pockets Loss on Stock Sale

Rather than relinquish his rigid views in favor of total abstinence, William Farnum, star of the William Fox production, "Fighting Blood," at the Hippodrome today only, has sold 160 shares of manufacturing stock at a loss of $21.58 a share, or a total loss of $5,920.80. News of the stock sale became public through the published report of a temperance society, and Kerr, Ludd & Hindley, Mr. Farnum's brokers, have admitted making the sale. The stock was part of that issued three years ago by a concern which was organized for the manufacture of cream separators and other dairy supplies. The stock fell in value soon after the war began. It had appreciated recently, however, and, according to Mr. Farnum's friends, would have netted the actor a good profit had he retained it.

Mr. Farnum disposed of his holdings after learning that cream separators have come into use as a means of beating the local option laws in various parts of the country. It seems that the thousands of gallons of cider made last fall by farmers in dry sections of the country were not intended for consumption solely as cider. More than half of the total output of cider, it is estimated, was run through cream separators, which extracted the water and left little but pure alcohol.

Mr. Farnum is one of the few actors who has never taken a drink. "My opposition to the use of intoxicants is not based on moral scruples," declares Mr. Farnum. "I simply feel that intoxicants hinder rather than help a man. I have never sought to foster my views on others. I have many friends who drink, and no man can ever say that I tried to dissuade him from taking a drink. As for myself, I prefer to leave all forms of stimulants alone."

lars, "On Trial" is nearly, not quite, as lawless piece of work, if we were to entertain the opinion of some of the best critics who voice it.

"The Birth of a Nation"

The operatic score of "The Birth of a Nation," which returns to the Auditorium Wednesday night for three performances, makes D. W. Griffith's magnificent spectacle of Civil war and reconstruction days almost as important an event musically as it is dramatically. Indeed, there are music critics who give Joseph Carl Breil, the composer, credit for a work Wagnerian in its ambitions and attainments. One critic called his score "the great American opera," just as several other critics, looking at the spectacle from the dramatic standpoint, have called Griffith's work "the great American play."

Mr. Breil, just as do Griffith's actors, artists and photographers. Everywhere in a Griffith production it is the Griffith mind that predominates, making a unified whole, and in the youth, Griffith had ambitions to become a grand opera star, and studied in Louisville with such a career in view. He developed a rich, baritone voice, which he can still use effectively in the intimate circle of his friends. Mr. Breil caught innumerable suggestions from the tunes hummed by Mr. Griffith during the staging of the big spectacle.

a triumph to project the atmosphere of Devonshire hayfield or Hampshire cottage through the milieu of chandeliers and mirrors, white enamel and gilding, of the modern ballroom setting. As one watched the pinetting figures, with their paper-lace bouquets and the amplitude of hoopskirts, one thought of the Bronte sisters, or the circumstance spinsters on whom Miss Mitford's pen conferred immortality, or Jane Austen's heroines, in the days when novels were taboos, and tea was an institution, and children dropped a curtsy and retired abashed into the background of a respectful silence. It was Louise Alcott's "Little Women" of a larger growth—or "family album" daguerotypes of the Margaret Fuller type that were brought to mind.

The naivete of the debutante was behind the saucy challenges, the reports courteous, the elaborate genuflections of imaginary chieftains of high degree or rosy shepherd lasses, the rustic mirth or sorrow of simple villagers and cottagers following the plow, or lamenting (like Bobby Burns) the death of an old mare, or rejoicing in the fulness of the harvest. The Fuller sisters have reduced—or raised—accent and rhythm to a science. By their crystal-clear enunciation, every word is made to tell and, against the sprinkled harp notes, counts for its full emotional value. The voices in themselves are nothing so great and wonderful—nor is there any pretense of it. What makes this singing consummately artistic is the perfection that is born of the most carefully studied simplicity.—Philadelphia Ledger, April, 1914.

Press of Country Has High Praise for Fuller Sisters

Highest praise by press all over the country is given the Misses Fuller, who will appear in recital of folk songs at Carroll chapel, Baylor university, tonight. Following are some of the press notices:

"The Misses Dorothy, Rosalind and Cynthia Fuller of Sturminster Newton, Dorset, England, delighted a discriminating audience that completely filled the concert room of the Adelphi yesterday afternoon, with a program of English, Scottish and Irish folk songs. Miss Cynthia Fuller played the accompaniments upon an Irish harp of the traditional pedalless form, its modest dimensions permitting it to be held in the lap; and it was so sympathetic in timbre, blending with the voices as though one of them, that any other support of the songs is hardly thinkable."

"The platform appearance of the three musicians gave the effect of demure early Victorian simplicity by the 'art that conceals art,' in the last, least detail of dress, coiffure and development. What the Irish might call the 'come-hither-in-the-eye' of these charming maidens at times belied the folded hands and parted hair of the Quakeress, to alluring effect. It was was given last evening in high school hall by the Misses Dorothy, Rosalind and Cynthia Fuller of Sturminster Newton, Dorset, England, whose previous appearance on March 26, 1913, is recalled with much pleasure. On that occasion the proceeds were for the Smith college fund; last evening they went to Brookside lodge and the day nursery, and the audience was large enough to indicate a substantial benefit.

"Seldom does one see an audience so enchanted, and the entertainment is the happiest possible combination of nature and art. A brief introductory speech by Walter G. Fuller set forth the nature of the mission which these young women have set themselves, and which comes to them the more naturally because some of these old English folk songs they have heard from childhood in their home in Dorset. Others they have learned with avidity from the collections which Cecil Sharp has been making, and this year a new group has been added from the surviving folk songs of the Hebrides, which have lately been collected by Mrs. Kennedy Fraser.

"Their singing is as charming as could be, and gives the effect, probably delusive, of being wholly untutored; it is at any rate wholly spontaneous and carries the conviction that in an ideal state of society people in general would be able to sing like that—sweetly, daintily, prettily. For that we may have to wait on Utopia, yet it gives at once an ideal and a kind of test for civilization. There is something wrong about a system that produces rattle and peacock voices, and it was pleasant to be carried by fancy into the more musical life that produces true folk songs, songs of the people, a people not frightened into silence by the competition of prima donnas and graphophones. To the eye we were carried no further back than the early Victorian period, but the Misses Fuller in their dainty crinolines would find it hard to secure admission to the current exhibition of bad taste; the style, however conventional, has a high decorative value, and 'composes' remarkably well. Songs and costumes made an altogether charming ensemble.

"A word must be said, too, of the mellow Southern English voices, equally delectable in song and in the little spoken introductions which were quite informally made. American English is not quite the same thing, and though often excellent, is likely to be a little lacking in timbre, in variety, and in melody. To hear the language sung and spoken as it was sung and spoken last evening is in itself a rare privilege, and the beauty of the medium added to the spell which was worked by the humor, vivacity and dramatic feeling of the performance. In the children's games they sang with exactly the downrightness of a child singing what parents and parents' parents had sung before them, so that there could be no doubt whatever about it—that is the true folk spirit, as different as possible from the groping and uncertain invention of the sophisticated adult. There were no false touches last night; everything was kept to the right scale of simplicity, colored only by roguish humor. It was a striking example of how far the most ordinary materials may be made to go if they be kept unspiced."—Springfield Republican, Springfield, Mass.

ROTAN DROPS OUT IN GOLF SEMI-FINALS

F. M. LEWIS AND C. MANGHUM, BOTH OF SAN ANTONIO, TO PLAY FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Clarence Hubby of Waco One of the Winners in Consolation First Round.

By the Associated Press.
Houston, Feb. 25.—But two golfers from San Antonio entered the third annual tournament of the Houston Country club and, fighting all through, they will meet Saturday in the finals. They are F. M. Lewis and Clarence Manghum.

Much interest was shown in the match between George V. Rotan of Waco, state champion, and F. M. Lewis of San Antonio. This started evenly, but soon became one-sided.

A test of brilliance and golf luck came in the match of J. K. Bole of Cleveland and Manghum.

The first flight, second round results were:

Frank M. Lewis of San Antonio eliminated George Aldridge of Dallas 3 up and 2 to play.

George V. Rotan of Waco and B. N. Brown of Houston, 6 up and 5.

C. Manghum of San Antonio and Bryan Heard of Houston, 4 up and 2.

J. K. Bole of Cleveland, Ohio, and J. L. Thompson of Houston, 4 up and 4.

Third Round (Semi-finals).

F. M. Lewis defeated George V. Rotan 3 up and 2.

C. Manghum defeated J. K. Bole 1 up (13 holes).

Finals schedule, F. M. Lewis vs. C. Manghum.

Things were looking bad for home talent this morning, when nine of eighteen holes had been played in the second round of the championship flight of the mid-winter tournament, on the links of the Country club.

All three of the Houston entries who survived the first round in championship flight play Thursday afternoon were down at the turn today. George Rotan, state champion, was 2 up on P. A. Brown; Clarence Manghum, the 20-year-old player from San Antonio, was 3 up on Bryan Heard, and J. K. Bole of Cleveland, former Ohio champion, was 4 up on J. Lewis Thompson.

George Rotan, J. K. Bole, Clarence Manghum, F. M. Lewis, survived the second round of the championship flight on the Country club links today, defeating, respectively, P. A. Brown, J. Lewis Thompson and Bryan Heard, all of Houston, and George Aldridge of Dallas.

In the second flight, first round, winners were E. Dickson of Shreveport, F. G. Jester of Dallas and W. H. Jones and Brown Rice of Houston.

Survivors of the third flight were C. Shear and Glen Padgett of Waco, Robert Russell of San Antonio, S. I. Munger of Dallas and P. T. Whitted of Shreveport.

In the consolation flight, first round, B. D. Moore of Galveston defeated H. L. Edwards of Dallas 5 and 4. C. L. Edwards Jr. of Dallas defeated Fred Rice of Houston 4 and 2.

G. D. Golding, E. R. Spotts, J. K. Dorrance and B. A. Baldwin, all of Houston, were also successful in the second flight, first round, while in the third flight, other winners were J. H. Pettiford, Port Worth, C. Weichsel, Dallas, and D. A. Barton, Denver.

In the consolation first round, George Aldridge of Dallas and Clarence Hubby of Waco were among the winners.

Crawford Speaker High School Club Weekly Luncheon

W. V. Crawford, advertising manager of Sanger Bros., and honorary president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of Texas, was the speaker for the weekly luncheon of the High School club, held in the Y. M. C. A. last night. Mr. Crawford spoke on "Salesmanship," the address being another in the series on vocational subjects provided by the club program for 1916. Complete knowledge of the article to be sold, said Mr. Crawford, is the primary qualification of a good salesman.

The customary luncheon of the club was served preceding the address. Rev. Frank H. Wright, the noted Indian evangelist, will probably be the speaker for the meeting of the club next Friday night.

COL. HOUSE VISITS AMBASSADOR SHARP

CONGRESS DECIDES TO TAKE NO ACTION ON SHIP RESOLUTIONS

that congress would not support the administration in any policy that would lead to a severance of diplomatic relations.

Senator Stone himself said he saw no cause for immediate excitement and no reason why any should get the "jimjams."

Support from Lodge.

Staunch support of the president from the republican side came from Senator Lodge, ranking minority member of the foreign relations committee, who announced that he stood firmly by the executive on his declaration of policy.

Interest in the senate centered chiefly on the introduction by Senator Gore of his resolution to express the sense of congress that Americans should forego their right to travel on armed belligerent vessels and of another by Senator Jones, republican, of Washington, to declare the sense of the senate that no ultimatum should be sent to a foreign power on an issue of national honor or severance of diplomatic relations be permitted by action of the executive without reference of the matter to congress.

Late in the day, when democratic leaders saw general debate might be precipitated on these resolutions tomorrow, Senator Kern moved that the senate recess instead of adjourning. That was done and will operate to prevent action. Senator Gore said afterward he had no disposition to discuss the merits of the issue immediately.

Save for a few burbles the house was calm after the delegation returned from the white house.

McLemore Persistent.

Representative McLemore made persistent but unsuccessful efforts to induce the foreign affairs committee to grant him a hearing on his warning resolution tomorrow. Chairman Flood explained that he believed it would be as well to throw the subject on the floor of the house as to have an open hearing. Later, he added, when the situation was less grave he doubtless would give a hearing to all who wanted it.

Twice during the day the subject came up on the floor of the house, but it never reached the stage of extended discussion. When Representative Hurst of New York proposed the printing of 5,000 additional copies of the McLemore resolution, and a wrangle appeared imminent, Speaker Clark shut off remarks with a few words about settling the matter with the chairman of the printing committee. The speaker failed to hear demands for recognition from Representative Bailey of Pennsylvania, who a short time later made public a telegram he had received from William Jennings Bryan endorsing the resolution.

Representative Sims, democrat, of Tennessee, had two editorials on the situation read into the record. They were listened to in silence and Mr. Sims had time left for discussion of the subject, which he did not utilize.

Many telegrams reached the white house today congratulating the president on his attitude. One of them came from Jacob M. Dickinson, secretary of war under President Taft. Members of the house also had messages, some demanding action to keep Americans off belligerent ships and others counseling support of the president.

London Praises Wilson.

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 25.—President Wilson's letter to Senator Stone is published this morning and affords the London newspapers the greatest satisfaction. A majority of the newspapers print editorials on it.

"The president's words have the right ring to them," says the Daily Chronicle. "He makes plain to the whole world that the United States is unshakable in its resolve to reject the impudent demand of Germany. In fact, the whole substance of the letter proves that for all his patience and forbearance, president has a clear objective which he steadily pursues and that when there is need to strike he can strike hard."

The Times says: "The president remains immovably true to his lofty moral attitude. On how far he will carry the country's opinion with him in the contingencies that may arise it would be injudicious and improper to speculate. But he is the issue what it may, President Wilson deserves credit for standing manfully to his guns."

The Morning Post says: "It is the fate of America, whether it will or not, to make a choice between her own gods and Germany's. President Wilson has sufficiently defined the situation and in so doing he has earned the respect of the civilized world."

Other morning newspapers comment in a similar strain.

Zeppelin Casualties More Than Reported

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 25.—The revised official figures of the casualties in the Zeppelin raids of January 31, over England were given today as sixty-seven killed and 117 injured.

The official communication said: "The final figures of the air raid of January 31, are: Killed, twenty-seven men, twenty-five women and fifteen children, a total of sixty-seven; injured, forty-five men, fifty-three women and nineteen children, total 117; grand total 184."

"These figures are greater than previously given—fifty-nine persons killed and 101 injured—because several persons reported injured have died from their wounds, some children under sixteen years of age had been returned as adults, and several cases of slight injury had been treated at hospitals."

"The number of bombs dropped aggregated 393."

During the raid referred to in the foregoing communication Zeppelin airships visited Norfolk, Suffolk, Lincolnshire, Leicestershire, Staffordshire and Derbyshire.

PEGGY

When Director General Thomas H. Ince obtained Billie Burke's signature to the contract under which she became a moving picture star in the Triangle Kay-Lee production, "Peggy," that is showing at the Hippodrome Monday and Tuesday and Wednesday, neither he nor the frolicsome Broadway favorite had any idea that she was really being provided with a joyous holiday experience, untainted, save for a trifling honorarium of $40,000, with a thought of anything as sordid as work. But it is in just that light that Miss Burke has persisted in regarding those sunny days in California during which she bubbled and frolicked through the scenes of the amusing comedy-drama which portrays her screen debut.

And the little star, even when reminded of the obstacles that she put in the way of Mr. Ince when he first sought to secure her for a picture, reiterated with pretty confusion her confession that she was genuinely sorry that "Peggy" was finished. At Mr. Ince's "I told you so," little Billie laughed merrily and declared that her experience had been wonderful. And Billie Burke was in turn wonderful to everyone who saw her at work in the Inceville studios. Her vivacity and endurance and happy spirits were a revelation to all her associates and no less to Mr. Ince. She was at the Ince studios bright and early on the morning after her tiresome trip from New York and announced that she was ready to begin work. Mr. Ince was prepared to waste about $1143 worth of his new star's time, this amount representing one day's salary, but he didn't have to lose even that trifling sum, because Miss Burke exhibited no traces of "camera fright" and appeared as much at home as if she were on a regular stage with a real audience across the footlights.

Money was spent lavishly in this Billie Burke-Triangle play, "Peggy." On one street scene was expended $5000. Mr. Ince was determined that it should be typically Scottish, and thirty buildings were required. So it was built with its quaint kirk, inn, thatched and vine-covered cottages. The story of the play is exactly like the star, delightful, wholesome, winsome, humorous, sympathetic and beautiful. In fact, while it is called "Peggy," it could with equal charm have been named "Billie," for in its analysis that is what it amounts to. Peggy is an orphan and an heiress, Scotch by birth, but living in New York. Her guardian, old Andrew Cameron, sends for her to go to Scotland to visit in his home, and Peggy's adventures there make up the seven reels of the production. She is like a square peg in a round hole in the quaint, quiet, old fashioned little village.

When Miss Burke completed the film and reluctantly left Los Angeles for the East, after what she termed "the most delightful experience of her whole life," she received a remarkable demonstration of popularity. City officials and notables of the photoplay world turned out to bid her farewell, while a band and thousands of spectators joined in the march to the station and garlands were thrown about her. At the end of the story of "Peggy," this unique spectacle is reproduced just as it occurred. There can be no doubt that Billie Burke has "made good" in the pictures and with this picture becomes as great a screen favorite as she is on the stage where she is the idol of thousands.

Methodist Preacher Denies Advocating Dancing and Cards

By the Associated Press.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 25.—The accuracy of a press dispatch relating to the recent conference of the Union of American Methodism held at Evanston, Ill., is denied by Dr. Fitzgerald S. Parker of Nashville.

Dr. Parker was quoted as advocating dancing and other amusements usually condemned by the church.

In his address Dr. Parker held it to be more in harmony with the historic position of Methodism and principles of the New Testament church discipline to rest authority for dealing with the amusement question upon the general rule that forbids the taking of such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus, rather than specific legislation against dancing, card playing and theatre going. He said that the disastrous effect of mediaeval casuistry should be a warning against making catalogues of sin with specific penalties attached but said nothing in favor of receding from the position of the Methodist church in regard to these practices.

The reference to John Wesley's seeing a play in London and dancing with his sisters in Epworth rectory was to Wesley the Oxford student, he declared, in contrast with the mature Wesley, who unsparringly denounced the theatre, the dance and card playing of his day.

Taking Things Easy in Mesopotamia

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 25.—A dispatch from the official press representative with the army attempting to relieve the British forces surrounded at Kut-el-Amara, dated at Basra, Asiatic Turkey, last Monday says that during the last month there has been a certain amount of patrol work, sniping at night and artillery fire by day. The British forces have thrown forward trenches to within six hundred yards of the Turkish positions.

"Cheery messages," the dispatch says, "come through from General Townshend (commanding the forces in Kut-el-Amara). He is sowing vegetable seeds and has asked for talking machine needles. These and other light requirements have been dropped into his camp from an aeroplane. He reports that he has sufficient supplies for a long period."

"The Turks long ago ceased their costly and futile attacks upon his position. The Tigris is now low but the flood season is soon due, when it will be difficult for both the Turks and the British to find camping ground not submerged."

"News of the fall of Erzerum was received with great satisfaction and was celebrated by firing salvos at the Turkish trenches from every gun."

Girl Ushers for Recital Tonight.

For the folk song recital in Carroll chapel tonight, when the Fuller Sisters will interpret English, Scotch and Irish songs, local society girls in old English costumes will act as ushers on the main floor, while Baylor girls in similar costumes will usher in the balcony. The town girls who will serve in this capacity are Misses Anne Risher, Louise Lawson, Erin Bain, Catherine Lewis and Lucy Lazenby, while the Baylor girls are Misses Martha Watson, Marian Bell, Clydine Pool and Haloise Herring.

Southern February 21 and 700 yards westward of Heudweiler on the day of the commencement of the Verdun advance. These gains were preceded by large advances at Vimy in January.

German officials say that the German gains have been scored at virtually every point where an earnest effort at an advance was made, and that in no case has it been necessary to precede the attack with a 72-hour cannonade such as preceded the offensive of the entente allies.

The importance of the gains northward of Verdun is evident. It is not alone the strongest French fortress, but it offers direct communication with Paris and has been a thorn in the flesh of the Germans for thirteen months. Military observers consider that it is now likely that Verdun soon will be menaced on all sides. The German line of communication north of Verdun has been greatly improved.

Important to England.

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 25.—The importance of England of the battle raging around Verdun was emphasized by Major Sir Francis Lloyd, general officer commanding the London district, in a speech today at the opening of a military building at Wimbledon.

"Do you realize that a fight is now going on for a passage to Paris?" said the speaker. "The result will hang in the balance until the Teuton is driven back, as I have great confidence that he will be."

"But if once our ally's line is pierced the way will be open to the French capital and if that capital is reached, a new complexion would be put on the whole face of the war and on our lives and being. A German success on the French front would not merely mean the loss of Paris, but would endanger London."

CHAMPIONSHIP HIGH SCHOOL
BY WACO HIGH SCHOOL

DALLAS TEAM GOES DOWN TO DEFEAT IN "V" GYM—SCORE
IS 44 TO 36.

Local Players Prove Their Mettle in Thrilling Basketball Game.

In the greatest game of basketball ever witnessed in Waco, considering the prize at stake, the Waco Hi quintette last night defeated the Dallas state title-holders at the Y 44 to 36, and thereby annexed the all-Texas championship for class A high schools.

True, it has taken three years of hard,
earnest effort to build together a team that was capable of wresting the honors from an all-star aggregation, the majority of whose members have played by side during this period, but before a fiercely-determined mob of high school fans, who went crazy when the final whistle blew, the deed was accomplished with as much artistic finish as the most artistic could desire.

Dallas had the most formidable line-up on the floor last night that has ever represented the school. The two Ulay brothers and Hargrave have played on the team for several years, and have thus perfected some of the most consistent, co-operative team work that it is the fortune of any team to possess.
But Dallas went the same route as did
Austin last week—they were outclassed.
Not nearly so much as they were in the city boys, but in almost every phase of the game they showed slightly inferior form to Coach Smith's men.

In the middle of the second half, Dallas showed a flashy stretch of attack which lasted for several moments, they seemed to gain a grip on the game, and parently slim chances, and showed an invaluable ability to advance the ball down the floor to scoring distance, from where the "Misses-not" Hargrave, running enough baskets to materially decrease Waco's comfortable lead.

Dallas' style of play called for the long pass, cleverly executed with either one or two men stationed on the boundary lines. With a center who was able to take the tap on Captain Knebel most of the time, the Dallas signals were worked for pretty advances and passes in the majority of instances.

Hargrave, the brilliant Dallas forward, leaped forward time after time, snatched the ball from the over-handed toss of a mate and threw the baskets from any position which he happened to choose.
He showed even better form than when he was two years ago in the memorable battle from which Waco emerged the loser. Bohan was undoubtedly the co-star of the Dallas bunch. This guard started a desperate dribble down the court whenever he secured the ball; no one seemed able to effectively stop him and his long, staid steps, in the three baskets, all the result of his clever runs up the floor.

Tarkington and the Ulays played their characteristic aggressive game, the former did not play the ball as much as he should; showing an obvious lack
of basketball instinct and a lack of skill with the ball. Tarkington, under his mates, as for the Ulays they need no introduction to sport-fans.

Built like bulls, and hanging on with tenacious, get-there spirit, they formed the foundation of the Dallas team.
Hearing in advance of the Dallas team the powers behind solidly built frames, and feeding incessantly to Hargrave, they displayed fighting spirit and sound judgment, the possession of all three of which attributes mark them as heady
all-around athletes.

The Waco team, undaunted by the tenseness of the atmosphere that greeted them when they entered the gymnasium, and seemed to play the ball as much
as he should; showing an obvious lack
of basketball instinct and a lack of
skill with the ball. Tarkington, under his mates, as for the Ulays they

Southern League
to Adopt Schedule
at Meeting Today

By the Associated Press.
Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 25.—The annual spring meeting of the Southern Association of Baseball Clubs, the principal business of which will be the adoption of a playing schedule for the 1916 season, will be held here tomorrow. The meeting is expected over resolutions to abolish the "split ball" and requiring that all double-header games be limited to seven innings.

A controversy between President Andrews of the Chattanooga club and President Frank of the Atlanta club also will be discussed. The tentative schedule, with the framing of which Frank was closely identified and disagreed with Frank over the ownership of Shortstop Island, who went from Atlanta to Chattanooga on waivers but who failed to sign a "lookout" contract.

The tentative schedule, drawn by a committee appointed at the fall meeting at Birmingham, is expected to adopt ed with only possibly a few minor changes.

The split ball and double-header propositions were presented at the fall meeting by Clyde Shropshire, president of the Nashville club, and referred to this meeting for consideration.
The Little Rock and Atlanta representatives are expected to support the measures.

Map of eastern Asia and Egypt, showing position of Russian forces in Caucasus and of English forces on the Tigris.

The recent great victory of the Russians under Grand Duke Nicholas, resulting in the capture of the Turkish stronghold of Erzerum, probably will have an important effect on the Turco-German plans, so far as Asia and Egypt are concerned. If the Russians sweep south, the Turks who are fighting the British forces on the Tigris will find it very difficult to get supplies.

MARKET REPORT

New York, Feb. 25.—Spots, middling
11.30c; market quiet; sales none.

Liverpool, Feb. 25.—Cotton spot was easier; good middling 7.99
middling 7.72
Low middling 7.58
Sales 4000; for speculation and export 1000; receipts 14,000.

Liverpool Statistics.
Liverpool, Feb. 25.—Weekly cotton statistics:
Total forwarded to mills 73,000
Total American forwarded 69,000
Stock 858,000
Imports of American 123,000
Imports of American 123,000
Exports 2,469

The market showed rather a steadier tone at the start. Cables were slightly lower than due, but after opening five points lower to one point higher, the market here worked about 3 to 7 points above last night's close on covering. Liverpool buying and a moderate demand from reactionists. There was less nervi-ousness over international politics. Offerings increased on the very moderate rally of some 6 from cotton yesterday.

Many early buyers liquidated and for a time the market was extremely nervious and unsettled. May contracts sold off from 11 1/4 to 11 1/8, while July broke from 11 1/4 to 11 1/8 and October from 11 3/4 to 11 1/4, or about 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 points below last night's closing prices. Offerings seemed to have been pretty well absorbed by the time prices reached this level and prices, but this fact alone was not enough to bring about a reaction. The market was quiet and some buying for a reaction.

Weekly Review.
New York, Feb. 25.—The cotton market has been extremely nervous and unsettled during the past week, with prices making new low ground for the movement under continued liquidation. Nervousness over international affairs arising from the submarine controversy have been doubtless contributed to the uncertainty of the long interest, but the market has been chiefly influenced by apprehensions of spot liquidation in the south or by the fear of increased arrears next spring.

The scattering long interest in March contracts appeared to have been pretty well evened up before the first notice was given. The spot market has been readily absorbed at a discount of about 25 points under May and comparatively few notices were issued yesterday, but this fact alone was not enough to bring about a reaction. The market
was quiet and some buying for a reaction.

Exports have been running larger since the end of last month. Southern spot markets have been in sympathy with the decline in futures and there was some buying for a reaction towards the close of the week on the ground that the break in futures has been overpaid.

New Orleans.

New Orleans, Feb. 25.—Gossip and rumors concerning the international political situation furnished the influences which moved prices in the local cotton market today. The conclusion of other factors. It was an active session and a large business was done on broad fluctuations at the close of the day. The market was quiet and some buying for a reaction.

SHERIFF'S SALE—The State of Texas, County of McLennan. Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a certain execution, issued out of the Honorable County Court of McLennan County, of the 11th day of January, 1916, by J. W. Baker, clerk of said court, for the sum of three hundred and thirty-eight and 100/100 dollars ($338.14), with interest and costs of suit, under a judgment, and in which judgment an attachment lien was preserved and perpetuated on the property described below, in favor of Morris D. Sachs, Edward Sachs and Sam Haas, doing business under the name and style of D. Sachs & Son, in a certain cause in said court No. 9429, and styled D. Sachs & Son et al vs. W. W. A. Curry, placed in my hands for service, I, S. S. Fleming, as sheriff of McLennan County, Texas, did on the 14th day of January, 1916, levy on certain real estate situated in McLennan County, Texas, described as follows, to-wit:

First tract, Lot No. 10, block No. 20, Chamberlain's addition to the city of Waco, McLennan County, Texas, as shown by map or plat of said addition recorded in Vol. 36, page 11 of McLennan County Deed Records.

Second tract, Lots 8 and 9, in block No. 13 of the Belle Meade Court addition to the city of Waco, McLennan County, Texas, as shown by map or plat of said addition recorded in Vol. 36, page 11 of McLennan County Deed Records.

Third tract, Lot No. 12, in block No. 12 of the Belle Meade Court addition to the city of Waco, McLennan County, Texas, as shown by the duly recorded plat of said addition.

Fourth tract, 75x162 feet at the corner of South Eighth and Speight streets, in the city of Waco, McLennan County, Texas, fully described in deed from H. T. Miller to North Curry recorded in Vol. 36, page 528, of McLennan County Deed Records.

And levied upon as the property of W. W. A. Curry, the sum of $338.14, plus 10c per day, of the 11th day of January, 1916, the same being the 7th day of said month, at the courthouse door of McLennan County in the city of Waco, Texas, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m., by virtue of said levy and said execution, I will sell said above described real estate at public vendue for cash, to the highest bidder for the property of said W. W. A. Curry.

And in compliance with law, I give this notice by publication once a week for three consecutive weeks immediately preceding said day of sale, in the Waco Morning News, a newspaper published in McLennan County, Texas.

Witness my hand this 14th day of January, 1916.

G. W. TILLEY AGAIN ASKS CONFIDENCE OF M'LENNAN COUNTY

In announcing as a candidate for the office of tax collector of McLennan county, George W. Tilley does so with a full appreciation of the many favors granted him in the past, and indulges in the hope that his many friends throughout the county will again rally to his support.

As an official and as a private citizen he has ever been Mr. Tilley's aim to conduct himself as an upright and honorable man, and he has deservedly won that high esteem which he has been so fortunate as to receive.

While filling the high office of sheriff of McLennan county for a number of years, which is one of the most difficult in the county to fill, Mr. Tilley was ever mindful of the great responsibility resting upon him, and was ever ready as the exigencies would arise, to temper justice with mercy toward unfortunate prisoners if it was in reality a meritorious case. From his early boyhood up to his present age of 52, Mr. Tilley has lived in McLennan county, and his success has been attained through the well-placed confidence the people of the county have reposed in him.

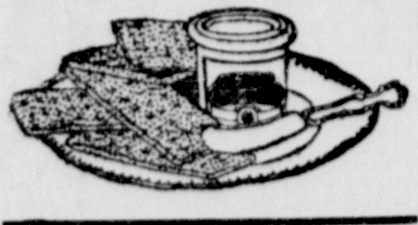

In asking for this very responsible office of tax collector, Mr. Tilley does so not unmindful of the great responsibility attached thereto, but with an abiding faith in himself to be competent and honorable enough to rise to the great importance of the responsibility. It has been well shown in Mr. Tilley's past public life that he has always endeavored to observe the strict enforcement of the laws pertaining to his office, and he promises if elected tax collector to conduct the office in a lawful manner.

It shall also be his very great pleasure to treat the people whose service he is with such a high degree of courtesy and painstaking patience that any one, though parting with his money for the payment of taxes, will be glad that he called on Mr. Tilley. Mr. Tilley believes that the support of the people in his campaign will be another act of confidence on their part, which he pledges shall never be regretted.

SALARY OF MAYOR FIXED AT $3,500

CHARTER COMMITTEE MAKES
PROGRESS IN CONSIDERING IM-PORTANT AMENDMENT.

NO SALARY FOR COMMISSION

Question Causes Much Debate—Unsettled When Meeting Adjourns—Permanent Chairman Not Elected.

Placing the salary of the mayor at $3,500 a year in a proposed amendment to the present city charter was the principal matter of business disposed of last night at the regular weekly meeting of the charter revision committee held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. At the committee meeting held March 4 an amendment was presented which would bring about a complete change in the form of city government now in effect in this city, one of the most important changes being that six commissioners should be elected who would serve without compensation. Last night the salary of the mayor was added to the amendment and also the clause which reads that the commissioners should meet not less than once a month was changed to read that the commissioners should meet not less than once a week.

A motion to let the commissioners place the salary of the mayor lost, as did a motion to let the charter call for a salary of not less than $2,500 and not more than $5,000, the definite sum to be set by the commissioners.

Salary Question Unsettled.
Whether or not the commissioners should serve without compensation brought out lengthy argument on the subject. A motion failed to carry which asked that the commissioners should be paid $5 for every meeting. Those who defended the motion held the opinion that citizens who were willing to serve as commissioners and were elected should be allowed enough to refund their campaign expenses and also for minor expenses while they were serving as commissioner and that $5 a meeting would easily meet these expenses. Members of the committee who opposed the motion held that the position should be entirely without compensation or either have a substantial salary, and that to offer a small fee for serving would cheapen the position, while no salary at all would make it more of an honorary position which would probably result in better men running for the places.

These amendments will be disposed of at the next meeting of the committee, which will be held next Friday night. In this amendment is included that the six commissioners shall be elected by the people of the city and shall include a representative from every ward in the city; that the commissioners shall be ineligible to hold any remunerative office or employment in or under the city government until one year after they cease to be such commissioners; they shall hold office for two years; that the mayor shall be elected by the people and shall be an ex-officio member of the board of city commissioners with the right to vote.

The question of letting the commissioners elect the mayor was discussed, but a motion to this effect failed to carry. When the motion was made it was said that by allowing the commissioners to make the selection it would to a great extent take politics out of the city government. This was opposed because it was believed that people of the city should be allowed to demand that they be allowed to elect directly the head of their government.

To date only a few amendments remain for the action of the charter revision committee, one of which is the proposed civil service board which would give to the board power to elect practically all the city officers and employees.

Negress Charged With Unusual Diamond Theft

Missing diamonds, placed in a shoe for safe keeping, form the basis for the unusual story which led to the arrest yesterday of Bessie Brown, negro woman, on a charge of theft over $50. Deputy Sheriff Lee Jenkins made the arrest. The complaint was filed in Justice J. J. Pugh's court.

Mrs. Tom Hamilton is the owner of the diamonds in question. Seeking a safe place to put them, she spied a shoe in her closet and placed them in it. Later on, forgetting for the time being where the diamonds were, she offered to sell the shoes to Bessie Brown for $15.00.

Bessie took the shoes home to try them on. Mrs. Hamilton missed her diamonds, and then remembered where she had put them. Bessie could not be found. Neither could the shoes—nor the diamonds.

Sheriff S. S. Fleming was notified at the time, several months ago, and placed the matter in Deputy Jenkins' hands. It took Lee considerable time to locate the woman, but he finally got her, and placed her in jail yesterday.
